MCKINNEY, Texas, March 25, 2026 /PRNewswire/ â?? Segway Powersports, a global innovator in intelligent off-road vehicles and connected riding systems, celebrated a triumphant debut at the legendary Mint 400, the iconic Las Vegas desert race and a key event in the American Off-Road Racing Championship (AORC) series. Under the Segway Factory Racing banner, driver Jacob Zuccone and co-driver Samantha Rode piloted the Super Villain to a third-place podium finish in the highly competitive UTV Pro Stock Modified class â?? its very first appearance in professional competition.

Renowned as one of the most grueling tests in desert racing, The Mint 400 demands exceptional durability, power and precision amid punishing terrain and unpredictable conditions. The Super Villain rose to the challenge, showcasing its potent 235-horsepower powertrain and 7-speed automatic transmission. These features delivered unwavering stability and control across high-speed sections and technical terrain alike, proving its mettle against a field of experienced competitors.

For Segway Powersports, the debut marked an important milestone. Racing serves as the ultimate testing ground. Competing on one of the sportâ??s biggest stages validated years of engineering and development. The podium finish in brutal conditions reflected the â??Fear No Placeâ?? ethos behind the brand, with both the machine and driver performing at their limits.

With a podium finish in its Mint 400 debut, the Segway Super Villain has announced itself as a serious competitor in the side-by-side market.
