HONG KONG, April 28, 2026 /PRNewswire/ - As International Workers' Day approaches, the definition of labor is undergoing a silent transformation. For today's digital architects—the programmers, strategists, and creatives—stamina is no longer measured by physical output but by the ability to sustain focus amid the cumulative stress of static posture. This Labor Day, LiberNovo is moving beyond the passive concept of "support" to pioneer a new paradigm: active recovery, achievable from your desk.

Leaving Static Support Behind

The LiberNovo Omni—the world's first ergonomic chair that dynamically responds to natural movement while sitting, recognized with the Red Dot Design Award and certified GREENGUARD Gold—transforms time spent in a chair into a continuous recovery process. Guided by a health-first design philosophy, LiberNovo introduces a way to work, rest, and recover through a design that actively adjusts to your posture throughout the day.

Innovation That Moves With You

The LiberNovo Omni is engineered with industry-leading features designed to #RewardYourSpine with support that understands how a body naturally works:
