SANTA CLARA, Calif., May 02, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) - StellarSpace, a global pioneer in industrial automation, officially launched its full-stack industrial intelligence product portfolio at the inaugural Global Embodied Intelligence AI Innovation Summit (GEIS) in Silicon Valley on April 28. At the highly anticipated event, StellarSpace unveiled a suite of core products purpose-built for industrial applications in the AI era, drawing significant media attention.

"The transition from automation to genuine physical intelligence requires a fundamental rethinking of the underlying hardware," said Tan Cong, CEO of StellarSpace, speaking at the summit. "As a key partner of Magic Ecosystem, StellarSpace is providing the 'muscles and nerves' for embodied robots. Our presence in Silicon Valley underscores our deep commitment to supporting the global embodied robotics community with industrial-grade reliability."

StellarSpace is pushing the limits of motion control performance and accelerating the adoption of industrial autonomy with its latest generation of programmable logic controllers (PLCs), servo systems, frequency converters, and high-efficiency industrial motors:

StellarSpace is committed to delivering customer value through extreme performance, backed by end-to-end solutions. By adhering to full-stack in-house development, the company provides essential technological assurance for control and drive equipment used in manufacturing, robotics, buildings, and infrastructure.

"The market has validated our technology. StellarSpace has secured orders from customers in the US, Denmark, Italy, Turkey, the UAE, Malaysia, Indonesia, and the CIS region," said Tan. "This cross-regional international trust fully demonstrates our ability to meet the world's most demanding industrial standards.â?•

At GEIS, Turing Award laureate Martin Hellman and former San Francisco Mayor Willie Brown joined experts from tech giants such as OpenMind, Google, and NVIDIA to explore the future of AI safety and urban living.

With MagicLab President Gu Shitaoâ??s 10-year vision and a guest appearance by Lay Zhang, the event showcased the convergence of security, AI, and industrial power within the Magic Ecosystem.
