Producer of the Paranormal Activity and Insidious franchises teams with AI-native studio Secret Level and Artlist AI Platform for the first union-compliant AI-powered feature film

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 27, 2026 /PRNewswire/ “In a major milestone at the inflection point of filmmaking and technology, Artlist, the leading AI production platform, has officially signed its first full-length feature film: Terrarium, a hybrid horror feature financed and produced by Artlist alongside legendary genre producer Steven Schneider and pioneering AI-native studio Secret Level.

Schneider, the producer behind iconic horror franchises including Paranormal Activity and Insidious, anchors a project that signals one of the most significant moves yet by establishing Hollywood into the next generation of production. Terrarium also marks a reunion between Schneider and Jason Zada, who previously collaborated on the genre film The Houses October Built.

Terrarium, which is currently in production, is written and directed by Emmy-winning filmmaker Jason Zada (The Forest, Focus Features). The film is produced by Christina Lee Storm (Nate Parker’s Newborn, Jurassic Punk) for Secret Level.

The high-concept horror project represents a bold leap forward in the evolution of entertainment production: a hybrid production where AI-powered tools and traditional filmmaking craftsmanship work hand in hand, in a fully DGA and SAG-AFTRA-compliant workflow. At the center of the partnership is the integration of the Artlist AI platform directly into Secret Level’s proprietary AI filmmaking pipeline, supporting a large-scale, cinema-grade production designed for feature-length storytelling.

“What drew me to Terrarium was Jason. He has a rare ability to make audiences experience something they can’t explain, something that stays with them long after the lights come on. With Terrarium he’s pushing into completely new territory. The way he’s making this film is unlike anything I’ve been a part of in twenty years of genre filmmaking.” – Steven Schneider

“This partnership is an incredible milestone not only for Artlist, but for the future of filmmaking itself,” said Artlist Co-Founder and Co-CEO Ira Belsky. “Terrarium is proof that AI can enhance the creative process in ways that empower artists, directors, designers, and storytellers to dream bigger and execute at an entirely new level. This is about expanding creative possibilities and not replacing human imagination.”

Artlist will serve as financier and Executive Producer on the film, marking the company’s official entry into feature filmmaking and further cementing its role at the intersection of technology, entertainment, and creative innovation. Terrarium is in active pre-production.
