LONDON, Nov. 2, 2026 /PRNewswire/ â?? SimCorp, a global leader in financial technology, today announced the appointment of Fiona Oâ??Donnell to the newly created role of Chief Delivery Officer. This new role underscores a commitment to exceptional client experience amid increased demand for the award-winning SimCorp One platform.

Oâ??Donnell becomes the executive accountable for client delivery at SimCorp â?? from a new clientâ??s first onboarding through ongoing delivery during every year of service. She will lead the companyâ??s delivery organization globally, with one mandate: help every client realize value faster and maintain delivery excellence every day.

Effective immediately, Oâ??Donnell reports directly to Chief Executive Officer Peter Sanderson and joins SimCorpâ??s Executive Committee.

SimCorpâ??s clients â?? asset managers, asset owners, and insurers running global, multi-asset operations â?? are modernizing their operating models at pace. They expect value faster, and a consistently excellent client experience as they continue to transform through time. The Chief Delivery Officer role is the first at SimCorp to place the entire client delivery experience under a single accountable executive, with a commitment that covers every client equally â?? those going live on SimCorp One this year, and the service to institutions that have run their investment businesses using SimCorp for decades.

â??Our clients measure us on how quickly they realize value, and then on our partnership and their experience every day that follows,â?• said Sanderson. â??Fiona will be the one leader accountable for client delivery end to end, with the whole firm behind her. She knows what clients need from a partner, and what it takes to deliver for them when it matters most. Clear accountability, and keeping our promises, is central to our ambition to be the first choice for global investment management solutions.â?•

â??Iâ??ve spent my career partnering with clients through the hardest parts of transformation, and Iâ??ve seen what they need most from a partner, someone who stands beside them until the job is done,â?• said Oâ??Donnell. â??Thatâ??s what drew me to SimCorp: one team, accountable for delivery end to end, helping every client get value sooner and making their experience better every year. Iâ??m energized to get started and to build a team where people can do their best work for clients.â?•

Oâ??Donnell has spent more than 18 years working with many of the worldâ??s largest asset owners and managers, most recently as a Client Executive and Senior Vice President at State Street Corporation, where she was the senior executive personally accountable to strategic clients through complex, multi-year transformation programs. Earlier in her career she was at ABN Amro Bank. She is recognized for the client relationships she has carried through significant transformation and for leading large, global delivery teams.

Oâ??Donnell will be based in London.
