ISTANBUL, July 22, 2026 /PRNewswire/ - Tiryaki Agro and the Djibouti Ports and Free Zones Authority (DPFZA) have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU), marking the next milestone in their shared ambition to explore the long-term development, modernization and future operation of the Port of Tadjourah. The agreement establishes a framework for cooperation aimed at strengthening Djibouti's position as a regional trade and logistics hub while supporting agricultural trade, supply chain resilience and food security across the Horn of Africa.

Under the MoU, Tiryaki Agro and DPFZA will work together to assess the technical, commercial and operational framework for the future development of the Port of Tadjourah. Subject to the successful completion of subsequent studies, negotiations and definitive agreements, the project envisions enhancing port infrastructure, expanding logistics and storage capacity, improving the handling of agricultural and bulk commodities, and contributing to regional economic development. The MoU also provides the basis for the parties to negotiate a long-term concession agreement for the management and operation of the port.

This agreement builds on IFC's partnership with Tiryaki Agro to position Djibouti as a vital gateway for regional trade and food security across the Horn of Africa. IFC's early-stage support - including feasibility studies, planning and stakeholder engagement - has helped build the foundations for this milestone, reflecting a shared commitment to unlocking Djibouti's potential as a strategic logistics hub and building a more resilient, sustainable future through private sector-led growth.
