SHENZHEN, China, Nov. 10, 2026 /PRNewswire/ â?? Millions of dreams. One city. A future in the making.

The documentary Shenzhen: People Who Build the Future debuts today. Written and narrated by two-time Academy Award-winning filmmaker Malcolm Clarke, the film offers an intimate and compelling look at one of the worldâ??s most dynamic metropolises through his discerning voice and storytelling.

Moving beyond familiar skylines and rapid economic growth, the film unpacks the cityâ??s true engine, embodied in seven individuals across generations. From early pioneers who laid the cityâ??s groundwork to tech dreamers pushing the boundaries of supercars and robotics, and from international educators to visionaries carrying Chinese culture to the global stage, their personal journeys define Shenzhenâ??s unique pulse.

Brought to life through Clarkeâ??s distinctive perspective and narrative voice, the documentary captures the resilience, grit, and imagination of a place where tomorrow is not merely envisioned, but actively built by hand.

The documentary is a joint project brought to audiences through a collaboration between Shenzhen Media Group and Malcolm Clarke, and is now available for worldwide viewing starting today.
