Alliance connects procurement to product identity and execution, enabling greater transparency, traceability, and operational confidence

PORTSMOUTH, N.H., Aug. 4, 2026 /PRNewswire/ â?? Loftware, a global leader in product identification and supply chain collaboration, today announced a global strategic partnership with RiseNow, a leading procurement and supply chain advisory and managed services firm that helps organizations modernize their operations from sourcing to fulfillment through proven best practices and agentic AI services.

By combining RiseNowâ??s spend management and supply chain expertise with Loftwareâ??s product identification solutions for SAP and SAP S/4HANA environments, the partnership aligns procurement with downstream execution, enabling businesses to overcome fragmented processes that limit visibility, compliance, and control. Launching with an initial focus on healthcare and health systems â?? where product identification and traceability are critical to patient safety and audit readiness â?? the alliance delivers end-to-end visibility and scalable track-and-trace capabilities, with plans to expand into manufacturing and other industries.

â??Organizations are under increasing pressure to make their SAP investments deliver measurable business outcomes,â?• said Justin Sadler-Smith, Chief Revenue Officer at Loftware. â??Through our leadership in the SAP ecosystem, including Loftware Cloud as an SAP Endorsed App, we bring greater intelligence to product identity across complex supply chains. Our partnership with RiseNow extends that value by combining deep transformation expertise with smarter product data management.â?•

The collaboration is especially valuable for healthcare and other highly regulated industries, where accurate information, regulatory requirements, and supply continuity are critical. By helping organizations establish greater confidence in the products they manage, the partnership supports safer decision making, improved compliance, and more reliable operations throughout the product lifecycle.

“We’re thrilled to join Loftware in a strategic global partnership to advance supply chain visibility, control, and optimization. Our advisory and operator-led managed services complement Loftware’s product identification solutions, solving the root problems behind our clients’ operations. Together we drive savings, reduce risk, increase visibility, and apply AI automation that improves both operational outcomes and user performance,” added Steve Dailey, President at RiseNow.
